

Mural

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1A

and Elizabeth Snyder with the mural.

The mural should be complete in three to four weeks, Bill Snyder said. St. Augustine mural artist Dean Quigley has been commissioned to complete the mural.

Bill Snyder said it was important for the mural to be complete before the Bartram

Conference in October.

Meanwhile, mural artist Nina Mateyunas is working on a veterans memorial mural. Bill Snyder said the veterans mural would be completed on panels at Mateyuna's studio and placed on the Putnam County Clerk of Court annex's west wall as they are completed.

Bill Snyder said the first panel would be dedicated to Vietnam War veterans.

aaikins@palatkadailynews.com

Fire

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1A

Castleberry, County Commission Chairman Karl Flagg and Emergency and Preparedness Chief Quin Romay attended the special

Interlachen compared to other volunteer fire stations.

And judging from what he heard in the special meeting and read in documents provided by the county, Corbin said the county would likely continue being light on funds and resources.

"I didn't feel that the town of Interlachen needed to be dic-

The town's refusal to pay the increased fire tax could lead to an increase in its Insurance Services Office rating and Interlachen property owners paying more in insurance.

Mayor Ken Larsen, like Leary, was caught by surprise when the council voted against the tax increase.

about their needs, but it didn't say where the money would go."

Every town resident with whom Lahert said he spoke since the special meeting said raising the fire tax was a bad idea.

He said he could not go against people who put him in office, especially when the three stations simultaneously would require raising the fire tax even more than proposed.

"Apparently, they must not have completely understood what the long-term goal would be," Leary said in reference to claims the county wouldn't give resources to Interlachen. "The maximum MSTU would

"Interlachen does not define the west."

boliver@palatkadailynews.com

in the shared section of the three panels is filled in identically. Therefore, finding a number in one box in the shared section advances the other boxes.

© 2015 JFS/KF

Kelvin Taylor and receivers Demarcus Robinson and Brandon Powell. "He's a guy that's really been accepted by his teammates," McElwain said. "Having him back is huge at that position especially. We like to use tight ends. Tight ends really need to be able to function in a lot of different roles with the shifts and motions and things we do with them."

"I saw a film of him not long ago that was posted with Rasher's progress. I pleased with Rasher's progress. In Rasher's junior season in 2013, he came up with sandy numbers—920 yards rushing and 17 catch balls and block out of the backfield. He can really is. He's not just a running back. He can testify of how much faster and bigger Derrick was running a deep pass pattern. The guy was much, much bigger than he was in the film. It's a testament of how much faster and bigger Derrick was running a deep pass pattern. The guy was really is. He was eight yards in front of the guy and ed in which he absolutely was teasing a guy covering. He was eight yards in front of the guy and ed in which he absolutely was teasing a guy covering. He was eight yards in front of the guy and ed in which he absolutely was teasing a guy covering."

but your football needs as well. The recent Crescent City Junior-Senior High School graduate and member of the team's 2013 District 8-1A championship team may not have found a school to play for when the signing period first began, but better late than never as Rasher recently signed to walk on to the Warner University football team this fall, joining former Raider teammates KATAVIS JACKSON and Bennie Norris along with former Palatka

NJCAA appearance—a creaky thing he believed assistant coach Cliff McGuff found in the back of Angels' Diner and that had about a 50-50 chance of getting them there. Gomez also remembered Stevens as a prankster who soaked Asher's underwear in gasoline, much to Asher's displeasure and surprise in the locker room, and